This week's message from Sophia: Spiritual but not religious? - Our last two readings from Job call us to consider God as mysterious, a power that evokes awe and wonder beyond our understanding. In a recent article, Uniting Church theologian Geoff Thompson writes about the tendency to separate spirituality from religion. He argues that one "cannot pull back the veils of injustice, violence and pain as if the encounter with God lies above and beyond them". <https://www.abc.net.au/religion/religion-spirituality-nick-cave-stan-grant-strange-christianity/>

It was a busy morning at Marty's last Thursday. Over 40 people came to share a coffee or tea with something delicious and catch up with friends or make some new ones. Along with all the folk who came looking for a bargain in our awesome Op-Shop, parking was at a premium. Well done to all the wonderful volunteers.
